Still on the Griddle.
"Ephraim, he hath mixed himself among the people; Ephraim is a cake not turned." Thus spake the prophet Hosea. Ephraim, it will be remembered, was the Democratic nominee for Congress. He was having up-hill work of it. He went among the people to show himself unto them and to beguile them with much language. He talked tariff by the way, which moved the prophet to remark further, "gray hairs are here and there upon him, yet he knoweth not." That is to say, Ephraim had a smattering of the subject, but did not understand it as a man should who goeth before the people to teach them. He was not posted, and stood in slippery places. He was old enough to know, but his early education had been neglected. He had failed to obey the injunction of the wise man and get understanding.

"He hath mixed himself among the people." Ephraim was not much of a public speaker, but the idea had gone abroad that he was a good mixer, and the rulers of the party had sent him out for to mix. Some things he mixed well, and though he could make them without straw, a straw was held in that day to be a necessary ornament to set them off. But he was not successful as a mixer among the people, and it is written that they turned their faces against him. "Ephraim is a cake not turned." In the days of the prophet they were very fond of cakes. Hence the use of this familiar figure. The toothsome of the cake depended upon its being well turned, at the right time. A cake not turned was in fact no cake at all, being spoiled in the baking. It might therefore be said of Ephraim that "this cake was not dough," for it never came to the point of cake fit to be eaten. This little episode in the career of Ephraim is very impressive, and it had much to do with his failure as a candidate and the subsequent bitterness of his life. His fate is handed down as a solemn warning.

Women Physicians.
Ink and breath have been expended without stint to show that women ought not to be physicians and that they never could succeed in the medical profession. All this is so firmly believed by some male practitioners that there are to this day county medical societies which deny admission to women who have graduated from "regular" colleges and are engaged in "regular" practice. It must be that very many people do not agree with this view, for the women physicians are getting along pretty well in these days. Dr. Rachel Bodley, Dean of the Woman's Medical College of Pennsylvania, has been gathering interesting returns from the alumni of that eminent institution. Seventy-six answers were received from women having an average practice of $2,907 a year. Ten of them have each a practice yielding less than $1,000 a year; each of four earned from $1,000 to $2,000 a year. The income of twenty-four was more than $1,000 and less than $2,000; of twenty more than $2,000 and less than $3,000; of five more than $3,000 and less than $4,000; of five more than $4,000 and less than $5,000; of three more than $5,000 and less than $10,000. It may be doubted whether the same number of graduates of a medical college for men can make a better showing. The average for the women physicians is much better than the general average for professional services. The women are making their way as bread-winners, and no opposition of sex prejudices or business rivalry can prevail against a woman who knows how to do something upon which the world places a money value.

Blaine in Pennsylvania.
Philadelphia Press, Oct. 10.
The appearance of James G. Blaine in the Pennsylvania campaign this year will be a most notable event. He will come to Philadelphia on Saturday, October 10, and speak at the Academy of Music that evening under the auspices of the Young Republican Club, of which Edwin S. Stewart is President. The other speakers on that occasion will be ex-Senator John Stewart, who has been a candidate for governor four years ago, and Charles Emory Smith, Mr. Blaine will remain in the city on Sunday, having quarters at the Continental Hotel, and will doubtless attend some orthodox Presbyterian church.
On Monday he will leave for the West, and arrangements will be made to have him speak at points on the route, either at the railway stations or otherwise, as may be arranged. His chief speech, on Monday will be at Lancaster, and Monday night Mr. Blaine will spend as the guest of Senator Cameron at Harrisburg. On Tuesday he will go from Harrisburg to Pittsburgh, speaking at Altoona and other points on the way. The trip across the State will be an ovation such as Pennsylvania has not seen in years. On Wednesday Mr. Blaine will speak only at the meeting in Pittsburgh, which will be attended by people from all the western part of the State. The week after next promises to be the most interesting of the campaign in this State.

E. Stone Wiggins, the late earthquake prophet, passed middle. For all that, his head does not appear to be evenly balanced.

THE BUSINESS SITUATION.
A Madman's Improvement in General Trade—Features of the Month.
The improvement in demand and production in special lines within three months has stimulated the long cherished belief that the autumn months of the current year were to bring about a marked increase in the distribution of staple products, and with it a return of commercial and industrial prosperity, the absence of which has marked the four preceding years.
An examination of trade conditions reveals much which tends to convince the most skeptical that there has been a radical improvement in general trade, and yet there are elements missing which attract more than passing attention.
Gauged by price, it is a striking fact that iron, steel, cotton goods, wool and woolen goods, coal, tin, lead and copper have sustained substantial advances, most of which appear based on the bedrock of a widespread demand. Pig iron is over 50c. higher per ton at the south, fully that at the west, and in small lots, 50c. higher in quotation has been ordered here. The production of 1886 is provided for, and makers in the Lehigh and elsewhere are discussing a one or two dollar advance for 1887. Finished iron is one-tenth cent per pound higher ($2 per ton), and would advance still further on a suggestion from the raw product.
Steel rails are not materially higher than in July, owing to the ability of foreign makers to deliver rails, duty paid, at southern ports (domestic) at prices competitive with those at which home manufacturers can place rails in Louisiana or Texas. Cotton prints are from 8 to 9 percent higher and raw wool from 3 to 6 percent. Woolen goods are firmer and in better demand. The increase of nearly 10 percent in tin and of about 4 percent in copper prices is due largely to the concerted action of producers, together with moderate gain in demand from manufacturers. The gain of about 50c. per ton in anthracite coal, while on the face it is an arbitrary act by the six companies who control production and transportation thereof, was rendered possible only through the increase in the demand reported from industrial centers after a season of prolonged restriction in output.
A little reflection will show that the above-mentioned staples constitute those of which we have heard most, so far as higher prices are concerned. To reach the level of prices, Wheat is about 12 percent lower this year, sugar is nearly 13 percent lower, for reasons frequently pointed out in this journal. Still there is little unfavorable to the business situation in all crops. On the contrary, it is to be expected outcome of a healthy revival from a prolonged business depression, which shows itself first, of course, in a widened demand for staple and industrial products.
